Bad Story of a Man Who Taught Him How to Play Poses-A Young Man Wanted to Open Oyecers.

Birdie Swartout, of Cripple Creek, rites in good faith to know if color ay be detacted by the degree of heat or a odor—in other words, is color per-ptible by means of any other sense

Le Fontaine says yes. He even goes so far as to say that people who are color blind may be quite accurate by means of other senses—taste, touch, small or even the feeling of warmth. He named in his last work—viz., "Color limit People and Blind Colored People Contrasted"—a case in which a local ontrasted — a case in which a loco-otive engineer, who had been color find for twenty years and held his seition by means of the sense of smell, aimed afterward that a red light had odor like red flannel, while the green che had a smell like green flannel. He is place, however, while suffering our a polypus of the nose.

TEACHING NYE POKER.

This may or may not have been true, it day before yesterday we had on the allman car Asphyxia coming north a an who said that the race problem had direct him to go south for the month! Movember, where he found that the slored man was well treated and rapidly coming so wealthy as to threaten the presuacy of the white race. He beyend that in a very few years the trade of commerce of the south would be in leared hands. He said that in one canty where he visited there were but clored hands. He said that in one curity where he visited there were but we colored men who owned a mule, seh, free of incumbrance, twenty years go, and now there are three of them.

Colored children, too, he says, are one plantiful, and parents seem more conomical of them. He says also that have is a strong atmosphere of progress saveding the gatherings there, and hough color blind he says that the there seems may be readily educated, if all sensitive, so that even in the darkers one may detect almost at once the color of the complexion pervading the though this of course refers

I believe that many curious anecdotes night be related regarding the wonderal distinction of color by people who see blind or color blind. I know of a soung lady whose father was very realthy up to the time he began to teach no the game of poker, and she suffered from color blindness, at one time eloping with the colored conchman and not disring her error until two years had derful air.

But I hardly feel like engaging help here that is troubled with hip disease, for half of these cripples recover so soon that they run away before I can supply their places. I got a good man to help me with light work (as he had formerly worked in a lighthouse). He had eleven hemorrhages on the way here and was brought on a mattrees to the house, but the following morning he quarreled with the man who brought his trunk, and breaking the poor baggage man's jaw with a single blow declared he would not live in such a —— lawless country and rode back to East Hampton, Mass., on my bicycle.

country and rode back to East Hampton, Mass., on my bicycle.

We only ask that people who are benefited by our climate will give it proper credit. It grieves us like everything to have friends come here breathing with anything they can get hold of and then go away with large, nice, new red lungs and claim that it was Bears' soap that did it. That makes us irritated and chalaric

Come freely with your abcesses and faraway looks, your little-Eva-goodby-Uncle-Tom air, your tallyhoes and tubercles. Bring them all. Come and cough up with the country. But when the glow of health as you ride horseback comes to your well rounded cheeks, and also to the place under the saddle where the hair is worn off the back of the dejected horse, do not go back home and say that you owe it entirely to a protective tariff.

The item in the Atlanta Constitution is true, but not complete. It should have added that while Mrs. Smith was celebrating her seventieth birthday Mr. Smith, her husband, was working alone on my justly celebrated well, which is 102 feet deep, and bringing up the granite fragments in a bushel basket held in his teeth, running up and down the rope hand over hand like a cat, and cleaning out the well preparatory to putting in the plumbing. Mrs. Smith is his second wife, and they have lived together as man and wife for fifty years. During the war they lived on a bank of edible clay and a distant relative.

Mr. Smith regards his present health as a result entirely of the ozone and un-restrained ballot of this state.

He has been mistaken several times for another William E. Smith, of Lower Fork township, who is one of the pro-foundest liars in the state, barring none. This has given Mr. Smith cause for much sorrow, and he has often wished that he was dead, but that is out of the ques-

Asheville has a large and prospe cometery filled entirely with people from the north who waited five or ten min-utes too late before coming here. Health here is so good and one feels so perfectly gorous that the mon drives some to drink. The pale, white dee of the Early Dent corn is used for this purpose, and yields a grateful warmth, followed by a healthy glow, and afterward by coma, stertorous breathing, incoherent mutterings and other signs of the third party.

A valued friend writes from Chicago, We certainly not only rival New York. but far exceed her in one thing—viz., the impudence and worthlessness of servants." Continuing, she says: "I have lived in Chicago for nearly forty years and never yet have seen such utter horror in the outlook for employers of servants. How many in the family? etc. We had a girl come last week to apply for a place, and, Mr. Nye, you could not exaggerate, if you tried, the list of questions she asked. Emboldened by my perfect helplessness and horror, she went on and on till she could think of nothing more. Then she said: 'Weil, I presume that it will do if I come Monday. I have some engagements for the rest of the week.' Then she started for the door.

I used to write freely of the servant stion and said some bright things at it, but that was when I was a bachelor. Now I am keeping house, and I am more reserved. I am writing a book, however, on the servant question, which will be published after my death. It will be filled with facts and written in a terse yet well chosen style that will in a great measure take the keen edge off the general public grief over my trremediable loss.

There is a class of superrefined young ladies, if common report is to be trusted, who think it a mark of superior cultivation to have small and dainty appetites. A Pennsylvania exchange has heard of

"Do you think you could eat a bit of the turkey?" said a gentleman to his consin, a young woman from the city.
"Why, yes, but just a small piece, se," she answered.

He started to trim off a delicate morsel and asked, "Is there any part you especially like?"

"Oh, no, I'm not particular," and she looked demurely at her knife and fork. "Just give me a wing and a leg and a few slices off the breast, with a portion of the gizzard and a spoonful of dress-ing. I can reach the vegetables myself."-Youth's Companion.

Mothers and Daughters.

Over twelve years I was afflicted with a very serious female difficulty and for the last sixteen months was under treatment of three of the very best physicians that money could employ. Under their skillful treatment I gradually grew worse, until they decided they could render me no permanent help. One of my friends persuaded me to try a bottle of Dullam's Great German Uterine Tonic, and after taking three bottles, I can say I am in better health than I have been for twenty years, and am now 60 years old, but feel as young as at 30.
